

Modern Recruitment Strategies in the Post-Pandemic Job Market

Author: Afrah Ibrahim Hussein

Specialization: Business Administration

Publication Year: 2026

Abstract

This paper analyzes the evolution of recruitment practices following the global shift toward remote and hybrid work models. It evaluates the effectiveness of digital hiring platforms, structured virtual interviews, and skills-based assessment tools, offering recommendations for HR departments navigating a more competitive and geographically distributed talent pool.

Introduction

This is a sample placeholder document representing the full research paper. The complete study includes a literature review, methodology, data analysis, discussion of findings, and conclusion sections, available in the final published version.